The UCL Introductory Programme - Staff briefing

What we will cover

This presentation provides an overview of the UCL Introductory Programme and how it might be used in your department to:

- help students and staff become familiar with the history of UCL & feel like part of the UCL community
- stimulate conversations about a range of thought-provoking issues

The UCL Introductory Programme

Designed to help students learn about and identify with UCL values.

Support students to understand future, including some important UCL places and people.

Engage students with new ideas and ways of thinking to help prepare them for their studies at UCL.

Created for new UCL undergraduate students prior to arrival on campus and throughout their first year

Also available for new postgraduate students, new staff, or anyone wanting to know more about UCL.

Introductory Programme - structure

The Introductory Programme contains three themes.

UCL Origins, Discovery at UCL, & Global London.

people, places and ideas.

Uses written text, images, videos and interactive activities to tell each story.

A fourth section looks to Future UCL this dynamic space will be updated with new content each 1-2 years.

Students can complete as much or as little as they like, whenever they like.

Why should students do it?

Help them to start to identify with and feel part of UCL

by learning about the development of UCL, its values, & research.

Why should students do it?

By completing the Introductory Programme, students will gain:

A chance to explore UCL, its environment and place in London, its traditions and values, and its different disciplines and its research.

Future UCL

The UCL Introductory Programme what can I do?

Promote the Introductory Programme to your incoming and existing students (and colleagues)

https://www.ucl.ac.uk/students/new-students/online-induction-modules/introductory